Overview

Texas gained more than 4 million citizens over the past decade, an increase of 15.91%. This resulted in the state's Congressional Delegation growing by two members, up to 38 following reapportionment. The growth in Texas was mostly centered around cities like Austin, San Antonio, Houston and the Fort Worth Dallas area. The areas that experienced the most population loss were located in the rural areas near the border of the state.

The White population in the state grew just 1.64%. Whites now make up 39.75% of the population. Whites continued to move from rural areas, to cities like North Cleveland and the San Antonio/Austin area.

The state's Latino and Hispanic population grew 20.94% increasing their representation in the state from 37.62% to 39.26%. This population growth occurred across the state but saw levels above 30% in metropolitan and suburban areas.

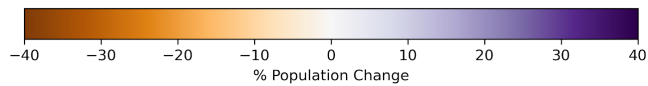

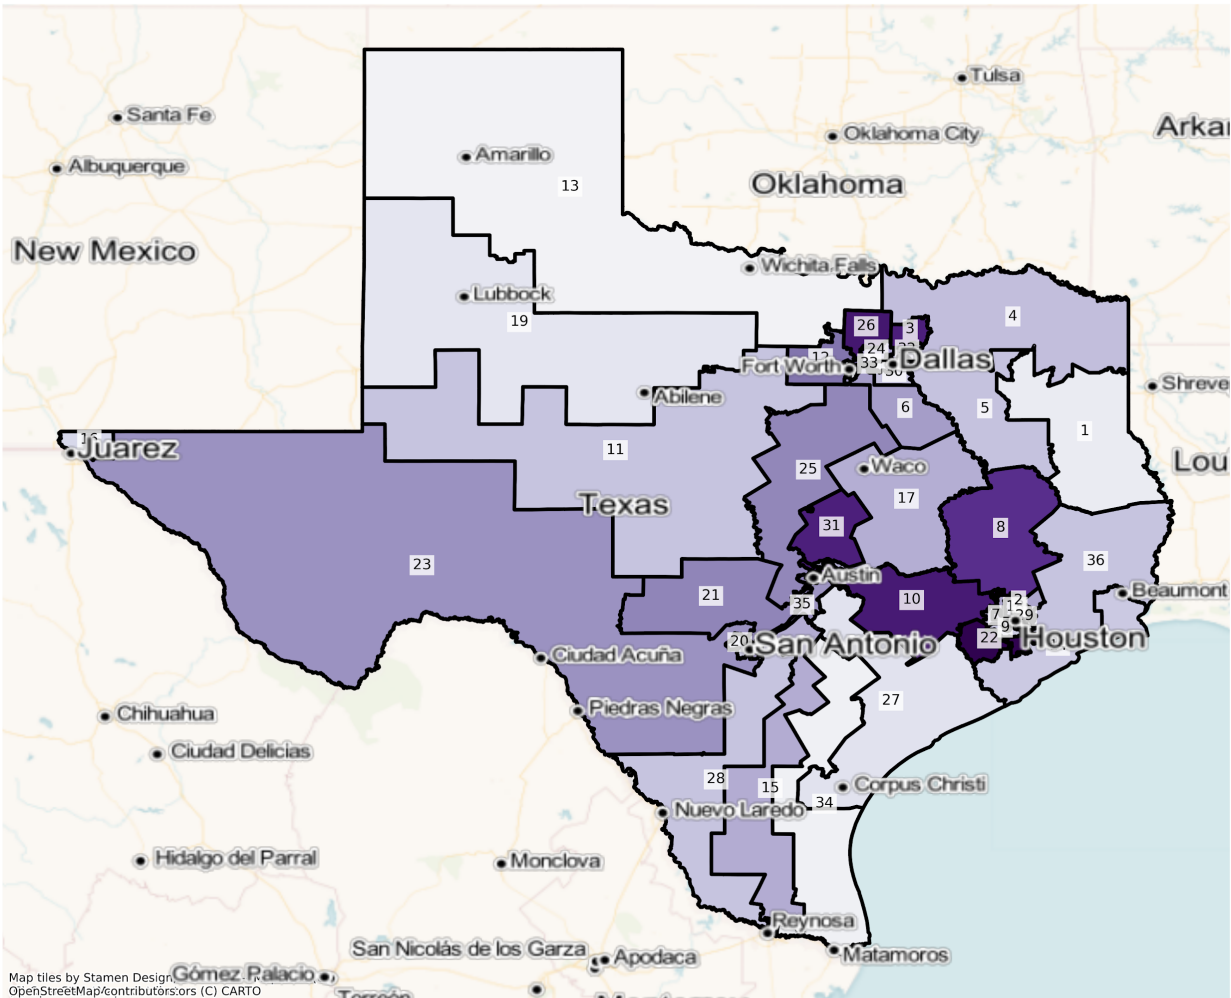

The African American population in the state grew 19.33%, now making up 11.82% of Texas's total population. The growth occurred across the state but was higher near metropolitan areas like Austin and Houston.
